

TIVIC HEALTH NAMED FINALIST IN MEDTECH INSIGHT AWARDS CATEGORY: MOST INNOVATIVE TEAM OR INNOVATOR OF THE YEAR CATEGORY

San Francisco, August 20, 2019 – Tivic Health™ Systems Inc., a commercial phase bioelectronic company, has been named a finalist in the Medtech Insight Awards honoring companies and executives who have made significant contributions in the device and diagnostic space. Tivic Health was named a finalist in the category: Most Innovative Team or Innovator of the Year. Winners will be announced at the MedTech Conference on September 23 in Boston.

“We are honored to be named a finalist in the Medtech Insight Awards and be among such distinguished companies that are driving the future of innovation in healthcare,” said Jennifer Ernst, CEO and co-founder of Tivic Health. “Our team is creating accessible solutions for chronic conditions and will be bringing to market in September a next generation microcurrent device, ClearUP® Sinus Pain Relief, which will help transform treatment for the 40-60 MM suffering from allergies.”

The Most Innovative Team or Innovator of the Year Award recognizes the medical technology team who has made significant contributions in the device and diagnostic space. Judges look at high performing teams that have been successful in reaching goals, adopted innovative working practices, achieved major milestones within expected timelines, and contributed to the advancement of medical technology for unmet medical needs.

“The Medtech Insight Awards not only recognize the achievements of innovative people, partnerships and organizations, but they are also an excellent opportunity to highlight the transformative work being done in the medical technology sector overall,” said Christopher Delporte, editor in chief of Medtech Insight. “Given the pace of product development, regulation and business in this industry, the awards finalists have all demonstrated their unique ability to navigate marketplace challenges and seize technological opportunity to improve patient care. And The MedTech Conference is the perfect event during which to showcase their success stories.”
